Main train and bus station in Novi Sad are at the same place. From there to the hotel you can take public bus, line number 4 and get out in city center. For those who are coming from airport Nikola Tesla in Belgrade, here are some additional info: At arrival's exit you can take bus A1 which costs 300 rsd (around 2,5 euros) that will take you to the main bus and train station (we suggest you to take a bus, not train because they goes more often to Novi Sad). At the airport in front of departure entrance (upstairs than arrivals) you can take public bus number 72 that will take you to the place "Zeleni venac" which is around 750 meters far from main bus and train station (map is below). Tickets is double cheaper.

The venue

Novi Sad

Novi Sad (Serbian Cyrillic: Нови Сад) is the main administrative centre of the northern Serbian province of Vojvodina, and the administrative centre of the South Bačka District. The city lies in the southern part of Central Europe's Pannonia Plain, on both banks of the Danube River.

Novi Sad is Serbia's second largest city, after Belgrade.

According to the data from November 2009, the city had an urban population of 283,634, while its municipal population was 370,101. The city is located on the border of the Bačka and Srem regions, on the banks of the Danube River and Danube-Tisa-Danube Canal, while facing the northern slopes of Fruška Gora Mountain.

Since it was founded in 1694, Novi Sad became the centre of Serbian culture and earned its nickname Serbian Athens. Today, Novi Sad is a large industrial and Financial Centre of the Serbian economy; and it is also one of the biggest construction sites in the region.

The name Novi Sad means "New Plantation" (noun) in Serbian. It is a translation of the Latin word "Neoplanta," which was given by Maria Teresia. As a meeting place of cultures and people, Novi Sad came to have many different names in various languages.
